Orientation

The Great Video Scavenger Hunt

below: Michelle Dyck, Liz Rempel and Emily Smith shave Andy Gingerich's leg to complete a requirement of the video scavenger hunt. The hunt list was compiled by RAs and included such things as doing a rap for Bill Born at his house, doing a dance while singing, asking the North Newton cops for a ride in their cop car, commentating on the International flags in the cafeteria and doing a police line-up of the group. Participants agreed that this was one of the highlights of Orientation weekend and in the words of Dan Anderson, "Go Warkentin Court Warriors!"

Aaron Joseph and Jason Adelhardt sit down to a meal in the cafeteria. With the new food service, The Food Guys, came such legends as the industrial strength toaster and the Abamaster, both of which notoriously made many food items burst into flames. Who can forget the sign: "Do Not Use – This Machine Burns All Items!" posted on the toaster?

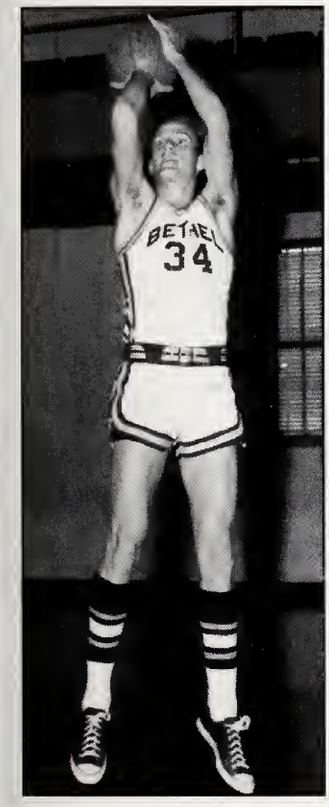
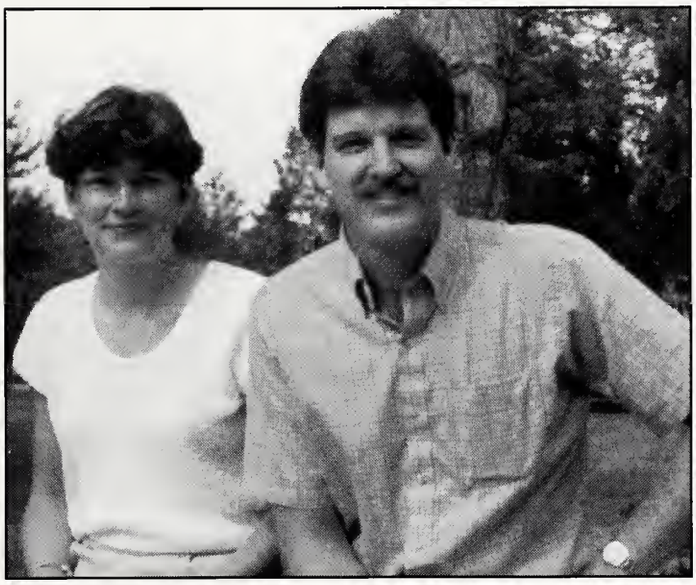
We'll Miss You, Doug





Doug Penner grew up in Reedley, Calif. He graduated from Bethel with highest distinction in 1969 with majors in psychology and sociology.

After receiving master's and doctoral degrees in social psychology with secondary emphases in statistics and interpersonal communication from the University of Kansas, Penner served on the Bethel faculty from 1972 to 1987 as professor of psychology.

During his tenure as a professor, he represented the faculty on the Bethel board of directors, the Kansas Collegiate Athletic Association and the consolidation task force. He also served as women's basketball coach and was named KCAC Coach of the Year in 1976.

In 1995, Penner came back to Bethel as president. His wife, Raylene, a former English professor also joined the administrative team at that time.

During Penner's tenure as president the college has moved forward in many ways, including the building of Voth Hall and Krehbiel Science Center.

Forensics and Debate

Livin' Large

Once again, Bethel Forensics and Debate has left its mark on our nation with its tradition of excellence. Throughout the season Bethel's competitors worked hard and their hard work was evident through their success.

Throughout the season the team spread fear in the hearts of competitors all over the nation competing across seven states – Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Oklahoma and Louisiana. Led by coaches John McCabe-Juhnke and "Mr. Tim" Jenkins, the squad managed to qualify four competitors – Sam Schrag, Jeremy Schrag, Aziza Hasan, and Katie Best – to compete this year at AFA nationals.

Bethel College is one of only seven schools that have qualified to compete at the national tournament every year since its beginning.

The squad also finished strong at the NPDA national debate tournament advancing the team of Jeremy Schrag and Chris Graber to the second elimination round.

Coach John McCabe-Juhnke was welcomed back with open arms after his year of sabbatical. He said he was anxious about coming back after a year of absence, to meet a relatively new squad made up mostly of people he had worked with for one year or not at all. He said he was "impressed with the cohesiveness of the squad and the maturation of their skills."

Next year the squad will face the "harsh reality of doing more with less" according to McCabe-Juhnke, with the resignation of our coach and friend "Mr. Tim" Jenkins and a budget allocation somewhat less than plush. However, the forensicators and debators have faced many difficulties in the past and are, without question, always up for a challenge.

Dance

Ballet class returns to Bethel after two years. The class was so popular that it was broken into two sessions so students could benefit from the personal attention of instructor, Emily Skala.

Julia Hoffman

Leah Larson stretches before class.

Dance is something different than studies, something physical. It clears your mind and helps you focus. It helps you stretch and feel a lot more awake and alive.

Dramas

On The Edge

The "edge" seems to be the perfect word to describe Bethel College drama this year. The department chose to perform shows this year that, according to Brent Noel, would challenge audiences "beyond the theatrical event." This year's plays included both "Aunt Dan and Lemon" by Wallace Shawn and "The Laramie Project" by Moises Kauffman.

Musical & Opera
Sounds of the Stage

The music and theater departments kicked off the year with a Fall Fest performance of "Fiddler on the Roof." In the spring, they joined forces again to produce the comic opera "The Italian Girl In Algiers."

Theatre of the Oppressed

Heather Levine, Unita Kham, Dianna Krehbiel, Joel Goering and Anna Wright watch Taryn Temple work with Kate Becker and Nisha Onta in the Fine Arts Center Drama Lab.

Student-Directed Drama

In a weeklong exploration of Augusto Boal's theory of drama and theatre, Taryn Temple, a senior from McPherson, and seven willing subjects tried out the various methods in order to explore the theme of oppression through theatre.

Temple was interested in exploring this particular method as part of her senior seminar because, she says, "An audience does not just sit and have the opinions of the actors thrust on them. By inviting the audience to come on stage, Boal works to eliminate both the helplessness of people in situations they feel they can't change and the passivity of an audience watching a performance."

To warm up, the group went through various slightly embarrassing exercises meant to awaken the senses and ready the players for open exploration during the rest of the exercises. The actual workshop exercises consist of making powerful images with everyday objects, forcing dancers to march and exploring real instances of oppression in players' lives.

The group presented an interactive skit, based on an actual experience on April 16 in Krehbiel Auditorium. This presentation was entitled "Overcoming Oppression: Techniques from Augusto Boal."

Jazz Band

"We had the best of both worlds this year – local and national," said Tom Luer, director of the Jazz Band.

"First, the Wichita Jazz Repertory Orchestra performed Duke Ellington's 'The Harlem Nutcracker' at the Christmas Concert. The WJRO is comprised of the best local musicians from the Wichita metro area. Then, we had the Count Basie Orchestra on campus, and this is literally the best professional big band in the country!"

The guest performers that came to campus, however, were not the only highlights of the year for the Jazz Band.

"KMEA was definitely a highlight for the jazz area this year. Both the Jazz Ensemble and a Jazz Combo were invited. In addition, my quartet was invited to perform. This was great exposure for Bethel College and our music program. There were so many people who heard one or more of these performances, and all were excited and interested in knowing more about what is happening at Bethel."

Tom Luer has been at Bethel now for three years, and we are very sad to see him leave. Luer sums up his Bethel experience in the following remarks:

Above and beyond anything else, the experience of working with so many enthusiastic students was the highlight of my three years here. I know I was often very demanding of the students, and they took it like professionals. Every rehearsal we improved, and were able to move ahead with the music. That's the most that any director can ask for.

I have also enjoyed the opportunity to work with such a talented faculty, especially the music faculty. They have all taught me so much about teaching and caring. These experiences will last more than a lifetime.

One other highlight that I must mention is when the band attempted to play Happy Birthday for Lora Swartzendruber and me at the 2001 KMEA Convention. Not everybody knew it, but it was the thought that counted, and I was thoroughly embarassed! They got me on that one!

I just hope the students have learned half as much from me as I have from them. I also hope they will continue to strive for new heights, and set their goals high in music and in life.

To all of my students, thank you!

Art in Transition

Three highlights define the art year, according to David Long, who teaches art along with Gail Lutsch.

"The visit of Elizabeth Dove as our Greer Lecturer this year certainly provided students with a unique view of art as a conceptual process. Secondly, the student art show. I was impressed with the level of competence our students exhibited in their work.

"And finally, the restructuring of the art department curriculum. This will allow students the ability to focus on a particular area of study and better prepare them for professional activities."

As it was Long's first year at Bethel, there were many things he enjoyed and a few things he looks forward to changing in the years to come.

I enjoyed the challenge this new position placed upon me. There was (and is) so much to learn and I have really spent a lot of time trying to keep one step ahead of my students. It has also been nice to finally be at an institution where I feel like I belong and am included in its daily life.

I have enjoyed my chance to place my stamp on the department by moving things aronnd, restructuring the curriculum, building kilns, and helping students.

I'm looking forward to expecting more from my students and placing more responsibility on them. I want my students to take art as seriously as they would any other academic field.

The Ecchoing Green

by William Blake

The Sun does arise,
And make happy the skies.
The merry bells ring
To welcome the Spring.
The sky-lark and thrush,
The birds of the bush,
Sing louder around,
To the bells chearful sound
While our sports shall be seen
On the Ecchoing Green.

Old John with white hair
Does laugh away care,
Sitting under the oak,
Among the old folk,
They laugh at our play,
And soon they all say,
Such such were the joys
When we all girls & boys,
In our youth time were seen,
On the Ecchoing Green.

Till the little ones weary
No more can be merry
The sun does descend,
And our sports have an end:
Round the laps of their mothers
Many sisters and brothers,
Like birds in their nest,
Are ready for rest:
And sport no more seen,
On the darkening Green.
